

Guided Reading for week beginning 25th January 2021

Please complete the daily work and send a copy/picture to your teacher.

5L Miss Langoo at elangoo@kingsavenue.lambeth.sch.uk

4/5/W Mrs Williams (Duke) at jduke@kingsavenue.lambeth.sch.uk

Lesson 1

PUT GR AND RP IN READING RECORD

Monday 25th January 2021

L.O: I can summarise the main points of the text

Finished? Write down 2 similes. e.g As quick as a flash. He laughed like a monkey.

2:00

L.O: I can summarise the main points of the text

Tell your partner: What are you learning about today?

We are learning to use _____ skills.

What strategies do you need to use?

The strategies I will need to use are....

When have you used this strategy before?

I have used this strategy...

When summarising I must remember:

SUMmarise It

Shorter than the text

Use your own words

Main ideas only

Narrative Text- Alex Rider: Never Say Die

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

It was the end of August, the last week of the summer holiday. The schools were closed and whole families had taken advantage of the fine weather to arrive at the old airbase, less than a mile from the sea. They had strolled around vintage planes from the First and Second World Wars: single-seat biplanes parked next to Spitfires and Hurricanes. That morning, the Red Arrows had put on a dazzling display, twisting and criss-crossing each other in the sky before swooping down, trailing plumes of red, white and blue. There had been fly-pasts by the Tornado GR4, the two-seat attack aircraft that had been used in Iraq and Libya and by the Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter, one of the most sophisticated and - at one hundred million pounds - one of the most expensive aircrafts in the world. The grounds were packed with simulator rides, motorbike displays, drones, face-painting and fair - ground stalls. Everyone was having a good time.

As with every public event in the UK, an extensive, almost invisible security net had been put in place. It was impossible to stop and search all the cars but CCTV cameras recorded every arrival and every number plate was instantly checked. People might notice police and even a few sniffer dogs moving among them. These were a common sight. But they would be unaware of the plain-clothes policemen, many of them with concealed weapons, mingling with the crowd. In fact the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) had met in their offices close to the Houses of Parliament just a few days before and had agreed that the threat level at the Suffolk Air Show would remain at MODERATE. They weren't expecting any trouble.

And so nobody paid very much attention to the woman who arrived just after three o'clock. She had driven into the car park in a Ford Transit van which, according to the Automatic Number Plate Recognition system, belonged to the St John Ambulance service. This is the country's leading first-aid charity and, indeed, the woman was dressed in the green and black uniform of a local volunteer. She was carrying a nylon bag marked with a white cross which, if opened, would reveal medicine and bandages.

She was short and round-shouldered with dark red hair that had been cut so badly that it stuck out straight on one side of her head and curled in on the other. There was something quite aggressive about the way she walked, like a boxer about to enter the ring. She was overweight, breathing heavily, with beads of sweat on her upper lip. She had a lot of make-up on but it did nothing to make her more attractive, sitting uselessly on her leathery skin. As she walked, she put on a pair of cheap sunglasses. They concealed the smouldering violence in her eyes.

Task 1. Put these events in order 1-8 write in your books

- ☐ A woman arrived at the air show .
- ☐ People visited an air show.
- ☐ A woman put on sunglasses
- ☐ People wandered through the displays, looking at the different planes.
- ☐ CCTV was used to watch the public.
- ☐ Planes put on a show in the sky.
- ☐ The summer holidays were coming to an end .

Task 1. Put these events in order 1-8 write in your books

Answers

1. The summer holidays were coming to an end .
2. People visited an air show. People wandered through the displays, looking at the different planes.
3. Planes put on a show in the sky .
4. CCTV was used to watch the public.
5. A woman arrived at the air show .
6. A woman put on sunglasses

1. What do you predict will happen next?
2. Summarise the extract using the words below
 - At the beginning.....
 - Next
 - Then
 - Finally.....
3. Is this like a book you have read before? What makes it similar/different?
4. What do you think the story is about? (USE APE)
5. When summarising a text what do you need to do?

Today's Challenge Question

Can you critique the text?

(What did the author do well? What could the author improve? Do you like the text? why?)

Self – assessment: Reflection

When summarising I must....

PUT GR and RP IN READING RECORD

Lesson 2

PUT GR AND RP IN READING RECORD

Tuesday 26th January 2021

LO: I can explain the meaning of words in context.

Finished? Write down 4 synonyms for tall

2:00

L.O: I can explain the meaning of words in context

Tell your partner: What are you learning about today?

We are learning to use _____ skills.

What strategies do you need to use?

The strategies I will need to use are....

When have you used this strategy before?

I have used this strategy...

Steps to success

- To work out unfamiliar words.
- To read around the text to understand the meaning of the word
- To use synonyms to work out the meaning of an unfamiliar word.

Narrative Text- Alex Rider: Never Say Die

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

It was the end of August, the last week of the summer holiday. The schools were closed and whole families had taken advantage of the fine weather to arrive at the old airbase, less than a mile from the sea. They had strolled around vintage planes from the First and Second World Wars: single-seat biplanes parked next to Spitfires and Hurricanes. That morning, the Red Arrows had put on a dazzling display, twisting and criss-crossing each other in the sky before swooping down, trailing plumes of red, white and blue. There had been fly-pasts by the Tornado GR4, the two-seat attack aircraft that had been used in Iraq and Libya and by the Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter, one of the most sophisticated and - at one hundred million pounds - one of the most expensive aircrafts in the world. The grounds were packed with simulator rides, motorbike displays, drones, face-painting and fair - ground stalls. Everyone was having a good time.

As with every public event in the UK, an extensive, almost invisible security net had been put in place. It was impossible to stop and search all the cars but CCTV cameras recorded every arrival and every number plate was instantly checked. People might notice police and even a few sniffer dogs moving among them. These were a common sight. But they would be unaware of the plain-clothes policemen, many of them with concealed weapons, mingling with the crowd. In fact the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) had met in their offices close to the Houses of Parliament just a few days before and had agreed that the threat level at the Suffolk Air Show would remain at MODERATE. They weren't expecting any trouble.

And so nobody paid very much attention to the woman who arrived just after three o'clock. She had driven into the car park in a Ford Transit van which, according to the Automatic Number Plate Recognition system, belonged to the St John Ambulance service. This is the country's leading first-aid charity and, indeed, the woman was dressed in the green and black uniform of a local volunteer. She was carrying a nylon bag marked with a white cross which, if opened, would reveal medicine and bandages.

She was short and round-shouldered with dark red hair that had been cut so badly that it stuck out straight on one side of her head and curled in on the other. There was something quite aggressive about the way she walked, like a boxer about to enter the ring. She was overweight, breathing heavily, with beads of sweat on her upper lip. She had a lot of make-up on but it did nothing to make her more attractive, sitting uselessly on her leathery skin. As she walked, she put on a pair of cheap sunglasses. They concealed the smouldering violence in her eyes.

What does it mean by commit?

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

PUT GR and RP IN READING RECORD

Main Task - Answer these questions in your book. Write out the question, miss a line, then write the answer. Use APE.

1. What words tell you that it was a nice day?
2. What does it mean by 'advantage'?
3. Can you find a synonym for walked in the text?
4. Describe what would be seen from the description 'trailing plumes of red, white and blue'.
5. What word in the text was used for 'old'?
6. What does it mean by extensive?
7. What does it mean by concealed? Write down 2 synonyms
8. Define 'moderate', use it in a sentence.
9. What do the words aggressive and violence suggest about the woman?

10:00

1. What words tell you that it was a nice day? Fine weather
2. What does it mean by 'advantage' in this context? Benefit from
3. Can you find a synonym for walked in the text? Strolled
4. Describe what would be seen from the description 'trailing plumes of red, white and blue'. Smoke from the planes in the sky flowing
5. What word in the text was used for 'old'? Vintage
6. What does it mean by 'extensive'? large area
7. What does it mean by concealed? Write down 2 synonyms hidden, secret
8. Define 'moderate', use it in a sentence. Average. We walked at a moderate pace.
9. What do the words aggressive and violence suggest about the woman? The words aggressive and violence suggest that the woman may be a villain and will do something unacceptable.

Today's Challenge Question

How is this text similar to anything you have read before?

Self – assessment: Reflection

What words do you now understand?

How has this session helped to make sense of the text?

Lesson 3

PUT GR and RP IN READING RECORD

Wednesday 27th January 2021

LO: I can retrieve and record information
from texts

Finished? Write a sentence that is 7 syllables about the weather. E.g It is very cold outside (7)

2:00

LO: I can retrieve and record information
from texts

Tell your partner: What are you learning
about today?

We are learning to use _____ skills.

What strategies do you need to use?

The strategies I will need to use are....

Steps to success

- ❖ Read the text carefully
- ❖ Find the appropriate information
- ❖ Pick out the information in order to answer questions

Narrative Text- Alex Rider: Never Say Die

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

It was the end of August, the last week of the summer holiday. The schools were closed and whole families had taken advantage of the fine weather to arrive at the old airbase, less than a mile from the sea. They had strolled around vintage planes from the First and Second World Wars: single-seat biplanes parked next to Spitfires and Hurricanes. That morning, the Red Arrows had put on a dazzling display, twisting and criss-crossing each other in the sky before swooping down, trailing plumes of red, white and blue. There had been fly-pasts by the Tornado GR4, the two-seat attack aircraft that had been used in Iraq and Libya and by the Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter, one of the most sophisticated and - at one hundred million pounds - one of the most expensive aircrafts in the world. The grounds were packed with simulator rides, motorbike displays, drones, face-painting and fair - ground stalls. Everyone was having a good time.

As with every public event in the UK, an extensive, almost invisible security net had been put in place. It was impossible to stop and search all the cars but CCTV cameras recorded every arrival and every number plate was instantly checked. People might notice police and even a few sniffer dogs moving among them. These were a common sight. But they would be unaware of the plain-clothes policemen, many of them with concealed weapons, mingling with the crowd. In fact the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) had met in their offices close to the Houses of Parliament just a few days before and had agreed that the threat level at the Suffolk Air Show would remain at MODERATE. They weren't expecting any trouble.

And so nobody paid very much attention to the woman who arrived just after three o'clock. She had driven into the car park in a Ford Transit van which, according to the Automatic Number Plate Recognition system, belonged to the St John Ambulance service. This is the country's leading first-aid charity and, indeed, the woman was dressed in the green and black uniform of a local volunteer. She was carrying a nylon bag marked with a white cross which, if opened, would reveal medicine and bandages.

She was short and round-shouldered with dark red hair that had been cut so badly that it stuck out straight on one side of her head and curled in on the other. There was something quite aggressive about the way she walked, like a boxer about to enter the ring. She was overweight, breathing heavily, with beads of sweat on her upper lip. She had a lot of make-up on but it did nothing to make her more attractive, sitting uselessly on her leathery skin. As she walked, she put on a pair of cheap sunglasses. They concealed the smouldering violence in her eyes.

Retrieval - whole class discussion

How many people attended the air show?

Where was the air show held?

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

Task

1. What season were the events happening in?
2. How far was the air base from the sea?
3. What happened that morning at the airshow?
4. What was the most expensive aircraft?
5. What was common sight to people?
6. What time did the woman arrive?
7. What vehicle did the woman drive in and where did it belong to?
8. How did the woman walk?

1. What season were the events happening in? summer
2. How far was the air base from the sea? Less than a mile
3. What happened that morning at the airshow? Planes put on a display e.g. Red Arrows
4. What was the most expensive aircraft? Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter
5. What was common sight to people? To see police in uniform and sniffer dogs
6. What time did the woman arrive? Just after three o'clock
7. What vehicle did the woman drive in and where did it belong to? Ford Transit and belonged to St John Ambulance
8. How did the woman walk?

Today's Challenge Question

Why would you recommend this book?

Self - assessment

- When retrieving an answer from the text, I must...

Lesson 4

PUT GR IN READING RECORD

Thursday 28th January 2021

L.O: I can infer using evidence to justify my ideas.

Finished? Add a connective to complete the sentence below.

I don't like celery I like cucumbers.

2:00

L.O: I can infer using evidence to justify my ideas.

What are we learning today?

We are learning...

What strategies can we use to infer how a character is feeling?

Use evidence from the text

Read between the lines

Look at the character's actions and what they are saying.

Narrative Text- Alex Rider: Never Say Die

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

It was the end of August, the last week of the summer holiday. The schools were closed and whole families had taken advantage of the fine weather to arrive at the old airbase, less than a mile from the sea. They had strolled around vintage planes from the First and Second World Wars: single-seat biplanes parked next to Spitfires and Hurricanes. That morning, the Red Arrows had put on a dazzling display, twisting and criss-crossing each other in the sky before swooping down, trailing plumes of red, white and blue. There had been fly-pasts by the Tornado GR4, the two-seat attack aircraft that had been used in Iraq and Libya and by the Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter, one of the most sophisticated and - at one hundred million pounds - one of the most expensive aircrafts in the world. The grounds were packed with simulator rides, motorbike displays, drones, face-painting and fair - ground stalls. Everyone was having a good time.

As with every public event in the UK, an extensive, almost invisible security net had been put in place. It was impossible to stop and search all the cars but CCTV cameras recorded every arrival and every number plate was instantly checked. People might notice police and even a few sniffer dogs moving among them. These were a common sight. But they would be unaware of the plain-clothes policemen, many of them with concealed weapons, mingling with the crowd. In fact the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) had met in their offices close to the Houses of Parliament just a few days before and had agreed that the threat level at the Suffolk Air Show would remain at MODERATE. They weren't expecting any trouble.

And so nobody paid very much attention to the woman who arrived just after three o'clock. She had driven into the car park in a Ford Transit van which, according to the Automatic Number Plate Recognition system, belonged to the St John Ambulance service. This is the country's leading first-aid charity and, indeed, the woman was dressed in the green and black uniform of a local volunteer. She was carrying a nylon bag marked with a white cross which, if opened, would reveal medicine and bandages.

She was short and round-shouldered with dark red hair that had been cut so badly that it stuck out straight on one side of her head and curled in on the other. There was something quite aggressive about the way she walked, like a boxer about to enter the ring. She was overweight, breathing heavily, with beads of sweat on her upper lip. She had a lot of make-up on but it did nothing to make her more attractive, sitting uselessly on her leathery skin. As she walked, she put on a pair of cheap sunglasses. They concealed the smouldering violence in her eyes.

Steps to success

- ❖ Use evidence from the text
- ❖ Using clues from the text
- ❖ Reading between the lines
- ❖ To use my prior knowledge and experience

Use A.P.E sheets to support answers

What does the final paragraph suggest about the woman?

A.P.E. Answer it What is the answer to the question you've been asked? Remember what you've read; don't guess. Prove it Choose a quote which helped you answer the question. Remember to use inverted commas around the word(s) or phrase(s) the author used. Explain it Why did that quote help you answer the question? Give as much detail as you can.  <small>©HRSPTACH</small>	Answer it I think... The writer... In this text... I believe that... It is clear that... The speaker... The writer creates ... by ... My opinion is ...  A.P.E. <small>©HRSPTACH</small>
Prove it For example... I know this because... The writer states that... The text includes... The character says... For instance, the writer describes ... as ... I get this impression because...  A.P.E. <small>©HRSPTACH</small>	Explain it This implies... This suggests that... This means that... This makes you realise... This creates a sense of... This makes the reader think/feel... This can be interpreted as... The effect of this is...  A.P.E. <small>©HRSPTACH</small>

Main Task - Answer these questions in your book. Just write the answer. Use APE.

1. Was the airshow a popular destination? Explain how you know.
2. Why would it be difficult to stop and search all cars that went to the air show?
3. Why would there be undercover police at the event?
4. Why would the counter terrorism office think that this event was low risk?
5. Why did people not notice the woman?
6. How can you tell that the woman was not an actual volunteer?

10:00

Today's Challenge Question

Can you analyse the author's use of tension?

Lesson 5

PUT GR IN READING RECORD

Friday 29th January 2021

L.O: I can provide reasoned justifications for my views

Finished? Write down 5 synonyms for angry

2:00

Narrative Text- Alex Rider: Never Say Die

Fifty thousand people had come to the Suffolk Air Show on the east coast of England. But only one of them was there to commit murder.

It was the end of August, the last week of the summer holiday. The schools were closed and whole families had taken advantage of the fine weather to arrive at the old airbase, less than a mile from the sea. They had strolled around vintage planes from the First and Second World Wars: single-seat biplanes parked next to Spitfires and Hurricanes. That morning, the Red Arrows had put on a dazzling display, twisting and criss-crossing each other in the sky before swooping down, trailing plumes of red, white and blue. There had been fly-pasts by the Tornado GR4, the two-seat attack aircraft that had been used in Iraq and Libya and by the Lightning II Joint Strike Fighter, one of the most sophisticated and - at one hundred million pounds - one of the most expensive aircrafts in the world. The grounds were packed with simulator rides, motorbike displays, drones, face-painting and fair - ground stalls. Everyone was having a good time.

As with every public event in the UK, an extensive, almost invisible security net had been put in place. It was impossible to stop and search all the cars but CCTV cameras recorded every arrival and every number plate was instantly checked. People might notice police and even a few sniffer dogs moving among them. These were a common sight. But they would be unaware of the plain-clothes policemen, many of them with concealed weapons, mingling with the crowd. In fact the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) had met in their offices close to the Houses of Parliament just a few days before and had agreed that the threat level at the Suffolk Air Show would remain at MODERATE. They weren't expecting any trouble.

And so nobody paid very much attention to the woman who arrived just after three o'clock. She had driven into the car park in a Ford Transit van which, according to the Automatic Number Plate Recognition system, belonged to the St John Ambulance service. This is the country's leading first-aid charity and, indeed, the woman was dressed in the green and black uniform of a local volunteer. She was carrying a nylon bag marked with a white cross which, if opened, would reveal medicine and bandages.

She was short and round-shouldered with dark red hair that had been cut so badly that it stuck out straight on one side of her head and curled in on the other. There was something quite aggressive about the way she walked, like a boxer about to enter the ring. She was overweight, breathing heavily, with beads of sweat on her upper lip. She had a lot of make-up on but it did nothing to make her more attractive, sitting uselessly on her leathery skin. As she walked, she put on a pair of cheap sunglasses. They concealed the smouldering violence in her eyes.

Main Task - Answer these questions in your book. Write out the question, miss a line, then write the answer. Use APE.

10:00

1. How does the mood change when the woman is introduced?
2. Write a few sentences to describe the setting if you were at the air show. What would you see? hear?
3. You are an undercover police officer at the air show, you notice this woman coming out of the van and something doesn't seem right. What do you do?

Today's Challenge Question

How would you rate this text?